

I'm going to pretend actual college football didn't happen this week.

Nothing happened in College Station. I checked. Weird empty spot on the schedule.

Moving on!

We had Alabama come back from down 21-6 against Florida State, Florida and Auburn combine for 83 points, Vanderbilt win on an end zone fumble as time expired because CJ Bailey was trying to stall before taking a knee, Arizona State and Kansas play a conference game IN LONDON, and Ole Miss ruined Lane Kiffin's return to Oxford. Pretty normal sport.

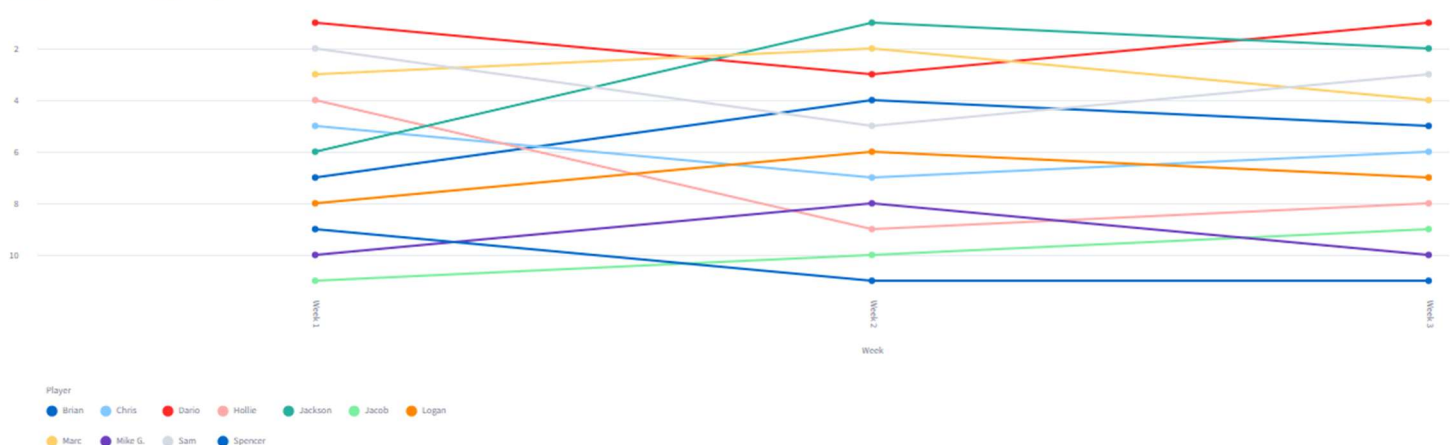

More importantly, we have all sorts of movement in the Stat Game standings!

Also, it appears Chapa, Ian, Mike M., and Jonathan have officially decided they have better things to do with their lives, so we're rolling with 11 participants this year. Quitters. All of them.

Here's where we stand after Week 3:

Rank	Player	Score	Pts. From 1st
1	Dario	1,384	0
2	Jackson	1,550	166
3	Sam	1,554	170
4	Marc	1,769	385
5	Brian	1,818	434
6	Chris	1,843	459
7	Logan	1,922	538
8	Hollie	2,061	677
9	Jacob	2,163	779
10	Mike G.	2,220	836
11	Spencer	2,270	886

Rankings by Week

Look who's back in first place! My main man, Dario!

Dario jumped from third to first with an extremely steady week. Jayden Maiava threw for 277 yards and two touchdowns, Jabari Bates had 102 total yards, Reed Harris caught a touchdown in London, and Kaleb Harris recorded nine tackles against Florida. No cheat codes and no disasters. Just four solid picks and a 654-point week. Sometimes all you need to do is avoid stepping on a rake while everyone else finds one.

Jackson falls out of first place, but I'd argue it wasn't entirely his fault. Rocco Becht threw for 212 yards and two touchdowns, Daniel Hill had 78 total yards, and Jalen Woods recorded nine tackles.

Unfortunately, Trent Mosley didn't play because of a knee injury and is apparently expected to miss multiple games. That's a full 400 points and pretty much the difference between Jackson remaining in first and falling to second.

I'm beginning to think checking injury reports (as long as they exist) might be important in this game.

Sam had the best score of the week with 553 points and jumped from fifth place all the way onto the podium! Although, Hollie finished with 556, so he won the week by a whopping three points.

Nate Sheppard did basically all the work here with 154 rushing yards and THREE total touchdowns for - 208 points. Kevin Jennings was solid with 257 total yards and a touchdown, while Kelby Valsin and Jackson Bennee combined for 613 points.

This is the Stat Game equivalent of one person carrying the entire group project and everyone receiving an A.

Marc had a rough one, dropping from second to fourth with the worst score of the week. Gunner Stockton had 244 total yards but only one touchdown, Rodney Fields Jr. ran for 18 yards, and Sacovie White caught two passes for 27 yards. Peyton Seelmann's eight tackles were actually Marc's best score of the week at exactly 200 points.

All four picks scoring 200 or more is impressively consistent. It's just the kind of consistency you absolutely do not want.

Brian falls one spot despite three perfectly respectable picks. Kevin Jennings finished with 148 points, Jeremy Payne had 95 total yards and a touchdown for 128, and Jeremiah Smith had 85 receiving yards.

Then Ethan Stuhlsatz didn't play.

Apparently, he injured his ankle the previous week, tried to go during pregame warmups, and wasn't able to push off well enough to play. That's a brutal 400 because Stuhlsatz entered the week as one of the leading tacklers in the country. The thought process was completely correct. His ankle just refused to participate.

Chris continues his climb, moving from seventh to sixth with the fourth-best score of the week. Rocco Becht and Jeremy Payne both scored exactly 128 points, which feels like it should unlock some kind of achievement. Charlie Becker was the real star with 127 yards and a touchdown against Western Kentucky for 46 points.

Suntarine Perkins only recorded four tackles, but the other three picks were good enough to make up for it. Just a solid week all around.

Logan drops one spot despite finding one of the best picks of the week. Turbo Richard—an incredible football name, by the way—ran for 149 yards and a touchdown, finishing with TWO points.

Arch Manning added 214 total yards and two touchdowns against UTSA, but Jeremiah Smith and Jimmy Wyrick combined for 505 points. Still, a 683-point week is nothing to complain about. Chris was just a little better.

Hollie had the second-best week by the smallest possible margin and moved from ninth to eighth. She was three points away from winning the week, primarily because Robert Fitzgerald had 11 tackles and a fumble recovery during Northwestern's absolute destruction of Colorado. That got her -75 points.

Julian Sayin and Ryan Williams were both good picks too. Unfortunately, Ajay Allen had only 30 total yards while Western Kentucky was being shut out by Indiana. If she had gotten basically anything from her rusher, she easily wins the week.

Yours truly moves up one spot after the third-best performance of the week. Julian Sayin had 241 passing yards and two touchdowns, Jeremy Payne had 95 total yards and a touchdown, and Mason Posa managed an interception despite only recording three tackles.

Jeremiah Smith was a little disappointing with 85 yards and no touchdowns against Kent State, but I'm not complaining. I've crawled from dead last to ninth place in two weeks. At this rate, I should take the lead sometime around Week 11. Just trying to give someone else a chance for once.

Mike G. drops two spots after an interesting collection of picks. J.J. Kohl had 276 total yards and a rushing touchdown, Easton Messer caught 83 yards, and Kaleb Harris recorded nine tackles.

But Mikey also picked Rodney Fields Jr., who ran for 18 yards against Tulane and finished with 364 points.

More importantly, Mike selected players from BOTH sides of the FIU/FAU game. That's true Sickos behavior. I respect it, but I'm also concerned.

Lastly, Spencer stays in 11th place despite having the fifth-best week. Keelon Russell was fantastic in Alabama's comeback against Florida State, throwing for 320 yards and three touchdowns while adding 56 rushing yards and another score. That gave Spencer -60 points.

The other three picks combined for 696 points, which basically erased Russell's entire performance, but a 636-point week still closed the gap. Spencer is now only 50 points behind Mike G. and 107 behind me, so last place is very much up for grabs.

Actually, the entire field is separated by only 886 points. That's barely more than two injured players, which we've already established can happen VERY easily.

We've had a different leader after all three weeks, Sam and Hollie were separated by three points for the weekly win, and Jackson and Sam are separated by four points for second place.

This thing is already a mess.

Don't forget to send me your picks for Week 4 and maybe take a quick peek at the injury report before doing so!

With 11 people playing this year, I'm thinking the payout will be something like this.

1st Place: $50

2nd Place: $30

3rd Place: $10

Bowl Season Winner: $20

QB 10
DARIAN MENSAH

LAST 2 GAMES
31
STRAIGHT COMPLETIONS

5 MIAMI 2-0 21 2ND

RECORD WATCH
MIAMI HURRICANES TONIGHT

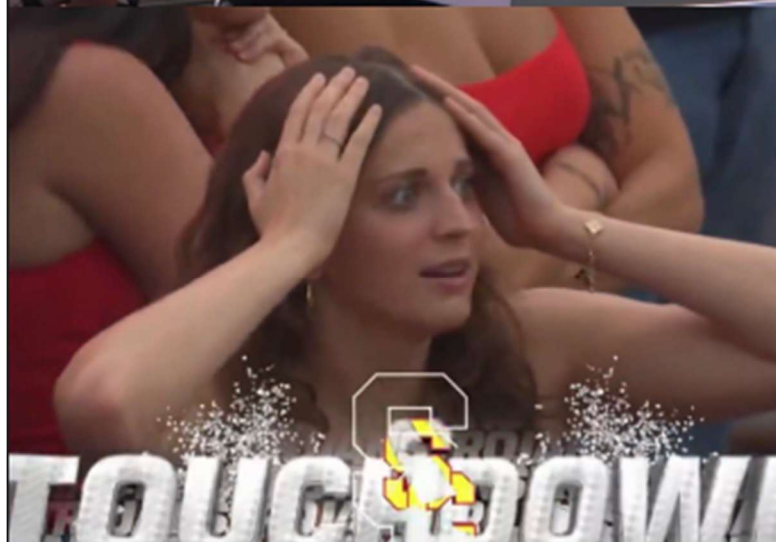

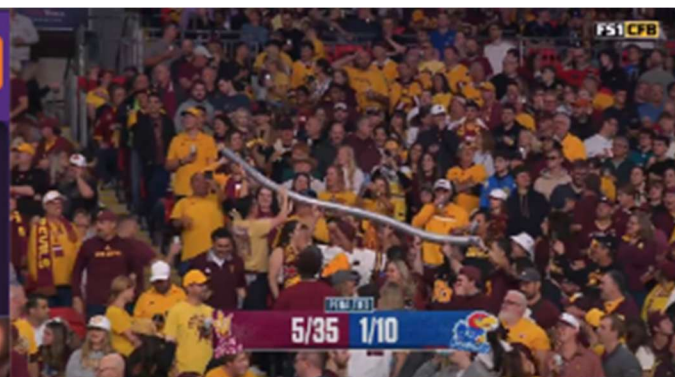

QB 10	WR 1
DARIAN MENSAH	MALACHE TONEY
24 STRAIGHT COMPLETIONS FRS RECORD: 20	11 RECEPTIONS MAH RECORD: 12

 TIGERNET LOG IN SIGN UP

Do we have too many white guys on defense?

11 replies | 156 | 5 minutes ago

Officers responded to an establishment at 205 University Drive, where they arrested Harry Dear on a charge of assault causing bodily injury.

According to an arrest report, Dear was standing at a urinal when a University of Kentucky fan walked up to use the adjacent one and reportedly said, "Let's go Kentucky." The victim told police Dear then turned and began urinating on him.

