

Alright gang,

First the sad news. We've lost Grant for the season. What a shocking, Gene Chizick-like fall for our former back-to-back champion. But hope is not all lost! He might be back next year.

Now to the fun; Football and Stat Challenges!

Lotta blowouts this weekend, huh? My coworker is a big Nebraska fan and let me tell you about how pumped he was to beat the everlovin' outta Akron 68-0!

But what about the close calls? LSU, Penn State, and Georgia looked sluggish for a majority of their games, Clemson and South Carolina trailed at halftime, and Mark Stoops always gives Lane Kiffin Hell.

You want bangers? You got bangers! Baylor/SMU, Kansas/Missouri, Texas State/UTSA, Tulane/South Alabama, and Michigan State/Boston College to name a few.

Oh don't think I forgot about the major and at times, hilarious, upsets! Mississippi State over Arizona State, USF over Florida, Army over Kansas State (Wildcats just respecting the Troops and donating a cool $1.7 mil), and of course, Adrian College taking down Valparaiso 10-7!

But maybe the most shocking result of the weekend is that someone who has picked SIX AGGIES out of eight possible picks is sitting in first place.

Rank	Player	Score	Pts. From 1st
1	Moni	1,009	0
2	Jacob	1,026	17
3	Mike M.	1,288	279
4	Mike G.	1,411	402
5	Brian	1,414	405
6	Ian	1,416	407
7	Chapa	1,420	411
8	Sam	1,491	482
9	Dario	1,518	509
10	Logan	1,554	545
11	Jackson	1,567	558
12	Spencer	1,582	573
13	Jonathan	1,684	675
14	Hollie	1,727	718
15	Marc	1,891	882
16	Chris	1,973	964

Moni had Robert Henry (non-traitorous this week) rush for -218 yards, and 2 of her total 6 Aggie picks on the year combined for 422 points (Mario Craver's 72 did most of the heavy lifting there).

Yours truly moved up to second place this week as Marcel Reed (ANOTHER AGGIE) torched Utah State and Texas State's Beau Sparks lit a spark in the Dome!

Mike M. slipped to third after picking Navy's backup quarterback (for rushing) who did not play. I had to look this up because I didn't know. He's Navy's leading rusher as of this game, but he only played because they were whippin' the crap out of VMI last week. Rough go of it. BUT SIXTEEN tackles for his tackler, Matthew Henry for 0 points is just chef's kiss

As one of two different people to reach out to tell me "Quintrevion Wisner was not available in the Google Form (FYI – it's under 'Tre Wisner' because I don't like how everyone just decided to call him Quintrevion this year), Mike G. gets what he deserves because he's a traitor. And what he deserves is a whopping 400 points because Wisner was allegedly injured and held out of the game vs San Jose State.

Brian was unlucky enough to have the one player in the Baylor/SMU game basically do nothing, but canceling that out was Nebraska's Emmet Johnson with -80 points in that shellacking against Akron.

Ian had the worst week out of anyone, but he's still in sixth place (showing how dominant Maryland and FAU each are). Maybe we avoid anything dealing with UCLA next time? Or let's just avoid any team or player on the 2025 Official Booty Butt List™.

Chapa's wee was really carried by Luke Altmeyer's performance against Duke and the recently reported, $1million dollar wide receiver, Kevin Concepcion (money well spent in my opinion – if y'all are curious, Mario Craver is making $600,000). Unfortunately, Taurean York didn't repeat his performance from UTSA.

Sam stacked Arkansas QB/WR against Arkansas State (PS – have you seen the Red Wolves' stadium? It's got a waterfall in it! Pretty cool). Taylen Green and (my now favorite named receiver) O'Mega Blake both gave solid performances and helped him move up to 8th place.

My main man, Dario, also had Jaden Pearson and his SIXTEEN tackles as he's had probably the most consistent first two weeks every (747 points and 771 points). Low and slow, baby.

Logan got the benefit of Sark's STAT PADDING for the poop strained face, Arch Manning (look up Sark's comments...they were bizarre to say the least). But -65 points is no joke in this game, and we ain't in garbage time yet! Also, are we in the Trust Tree, here? I think Germie Bernard is Alabama's best wide receiver (yes, over Ryan Williams).

The second player who asked about "Quintrevion Wisner" was Jackson, but having Keving Jennings throw for a million yards really helps lessen the DNP pains.

Spencer, I bet you wish Behren Morton didn't sit out like the entire second half. He crushed it for you, but the rest of your picks leave something to be desired.

Jonathan! I would like a word with you after class. You are new here, so I'm not mad; I'm just disappointed. Florida State played East Texas A&M this past weekend. I'm gonna ask...Was East Texas A&M on the dropdown for teams on the submission form? It sure wasn't and you left it blank anyways! ETAMU is an FCS team, so unfortunately, none of your Thomas Castellanos points count. But don't be discouraged...I think this has happened to basically everyone at least once.

Hollie won't read this, so I'm not sure why I'm putting anything here. Taylen Green was awesome, and so was Justice Haynes (at least on the very first play of the third quarter).

Marc had the very first worse-than-400-point performance of the season. I don't know how you recover from that one, man!

Chris is still knocking the rust off after taking a hiatus from the game last year. It really hurts that Kansas State is Booty Butt, and he stacked two Wildcats against Army.

I will be in South Bend this weekend watching the Ags beat the hell outta the Fightin' Irish, so I will not be sending out any reminders to make picks this week. Just want to give everyone a head's up .

Again, if you have not paid me already, please do so. Venmo: @Jacob-Alvarez-1

And with Grant out, and us down to 16 participants, the new payouts will be as follows:

1st Place: $100

2nd Place: $30

3rd Place: $10

Bowl Season Winner: $20
