

Happy Friday, guys!

As has become an unfortunate tradition, I'm getting this done on a Friday after a good chunk of weeknight games has already happened. As for this last week, I can't seem to recall anything from about 11am to 12:30pm but after that, it was a fun day of football. Oklahoma continues to be the Iowa of the SEC as they beat Alabama despite being doubled up in yardage, Georgia looks like a top 2 team in the country after smacking Texas by three scores, Ole Miss nearly blows it against Florida, Texas Tech is just better than everyone else in the Big 12, and Georgia Tech's defense still looking suspect to say the least.

Rankings by Week

My man, Dario, back on top after a solid week carried by Ole Miss's Kewan Lacy and our Fightin' Texas Aggie, KC Concepcion.

Chris is still going for the record for most repeated picks this year. He picked LJ Martin FOR A THIRD TIME THIS YEAR and Mario Craver for a second. Not to single him out, Mike M. picked Skyler Bell for the second time this season, and the MAction schedule really messed him up as he picked Bowling Green's Gideon Lampron who played Tuesday, November 18 (Week 13; not Week 12). We also had Marc with his first no pick this year...and maybe his first no pick ever(?)

Some of the better picks this week were anyone riding with Ahmad Hardy and his THREE HUNDRED RUSHING YARDS AND THREE TOUCHDOWNS (Shout out Mike G. and myself). Moni got -478 behind UNT's Caleb Hawkins' FIVE RUSHING TOUCHDOWNS. I already mentioned Kewan Lacy; he had -348 points. Logan rode with Marcel Reed (in what I assume was only the second half of that game), and it paid off with -129 points (he also had Jacob Rodriguez and his -25 points, but there's only room for ONE Heisman finalist in this state).

Mike M.'s week wasn't all bad. Byrum Brown had -87 points in USF's loss to Navy. Hollie's tackler, Caden Fordham, had 11 tackles and a fumble recovery against Miami this week, and J'mari Taylor got Jackson - 66 points from the rushing spot this week. Our last negative score this week, was former Fightin' Texas Aggie, Haynes King (picked by Sam) and his -1 points as Georgia Tech survived BC.

We had a few injuries we had to deal with this week. Denzel Boston got hurt during the game and didn't record a stat for Mike G., and Carnell Tate didn't even play for Jonathan against UCLA. That's a tough break.

As we only have a few weeks left in the season, this competition is STILL incredibly tight. 672 points separates first and fifth place, while ninth place is still one banger week away from catching up (behind 1,402 points). And even still, twelfth place is less than 2,000 points from first (1,890), and I can't remember the last time it's been like that.

Good work, everyone!
